

This article explores the most common solar panel scams, provides tips to recognize red flags, and offers guidance on protecting yourself from fraudulent solar companies.

By getting more consumers to report scammy solar companies, government officials said, they can more effectively track complaints and seek to hold accountable companies that violate the law.

It's likely a scam. While there are some government-funded solar programs for households that qualify, "going solar" isn't free. Honest businesses will tell you exactly how much it'll ...

While you are browsing solar power companies, one of them may ...

No information about the cost to remove or transfer solar panels, which could lead you to believe you have future options that might not be available or affordable

The Fraud Watch Network has received reports that some criminals use the door-to-door solar sales pitch as a ruse to get personal identifying information to commit identity theft.

Legitimate solar savings come from reduced electricity bills, not from special programs or guaranteed tax payouts. You can be an informed solar shopper and increase your chances of ...

One of the major risks of permitting fraud is the potential for legal complications. If your solar installation is not properly permitted, you may face fines, penalties, or even forced system removal.

Learn how to spot solar panel fraud, avoid predatory contracts, and take action if you've been scammed, with guidance from Prevost Law Firm.

One of the major risks of permitting fraud is the potential for legal complications. ...

Remind prospective customers that while tax credits, rebates, and incentives might be available for solar purchasers who qualify, offers for "free" or "no cost" solar panels are scams.

While you are browsing solar power companies, one of them may offer to install a solar panel or solar roof in your home for a small cost or even for free. It's an intentionally misleading claim.

Web: <https://www.idsolar.co.za>